November 2018

Dear Parents, Carers and Children,

On Sunday 18th November, The Sunday Times once again released their list of the country's top performing state and independent schools in England for 2017-18.

To compare schools, the newspaper identified the 2,000 highest-achieving schools in the UK, and ranked them by their most recent examination results.

The Sunday Times state that with all the data they gather this list is the most comprehensive resource covering elite school performance in the UK.

As you can see Ben Rhydding received a ranking of 484, this once again puts the school in the top 3% of Primary schools in the country. This is the second year running that Ben Rhydding Primary School has appeared on this list, unlike a number of schools who are appearing for the first time.

This is remarkable achievement and is testament to all the hard work and outstanding teaching and learning that is being delivered by all the staff at Ben Rhydding Primary School.

It also reflects the dedication and support the school receives from our Governors, the PTA and all our pupils, parents and guardians. Without this support and the strong community spirit that surrounds the school, such an achievement would not have been possible.

Kind regards,

Mr Glen Hartford
Head Teacher
